Everyone knows what to do, but very few people know what to avoid for getting success in the forex market. Forex courses help you to know what to do and what to not in the forex market.

Chapter 5: Different Types of Forex Accounts

5.1 The Beginners In Forex Trading Market Have Three Options In Hand:

You can either jump straight in the live real trade with a standard account. You may have to invest something in between $1,000 and $5,000. This could be very risky for the starters as the forex trading market is uncertain. Thus, you must not opt for this unless you have gained too much experience in forex trading through some source. Secondly, you can start doing your live trading with the use of real money, but it is recommended that you use the mini forex trading account. There are many brokers in the market who ask beginners to make a low investment of just $250 to get started. If you search around a little then you may find brokers who agree to start forex trading with even less amount of money.

Last, but the most convenient option for the forex traders is that they use the forex demo account to get started. Through forex demo account method, you can learn about the real methods of the forex trading market without yourself risking any money. The main idea behind the use of forex demo account in trading is that you can practice the art using this and then move on to the live trading, which you can start by switching off with a mini trading account or a standard account.

5.2 Comparing A Forex Demo Account With Mini Forex Trading:

If you are a beginner in the forex trading business then you may first need to look around for a good forex demo account. It contains several advantages that are especially tailor made for the beginners. Apart from this, there is also the mini forex trading account. Are you confused about which is better than the other? Then let us find out whether a forex demo account is preferable or you must go with the mini forex trading account.

A mini trading account is specially designed for those who are learners in the forex trading business. This account allows you to trade in the real market with real money, but in very small amount so that you don't incur huge losses. This account can be easily opened with a small amount of starting fund. There are many brokers who can offer you a mini forex trading account which is one tenth of the standard account that is usually used for trading. Most of the beginners opt for the last option, the forex demo account, because in their opinion it is safer to use the 'pretend money' than to start trading online with real money. A forex demo account also gives you enough freedom to try out different strategies and systems. However it is recommended that you stick to just one system while using the forex demo account. The only disadvantage in the forex demo account is that, you know that it is not real and this inspires you to take hasty and risky decisions which may not be suitable for real forex trading market. This would make you uncomfortable when you are in the real forex trading market. So, choose forex demo account at in the beginning but then sharpen your skills using a mini forex trading account.

5.3 Comparing A Mini Forex Account With Regural Forex Account:

If you are new to this place then it is always suggested to get one forex mini account and try your luck in this market or if you have experience in the forex market then you must go for forex regular account.

The main difference between the forex mini account and forex regular account is that, in case of forex mini account - you are allowed to open an account with just $250 where as in the case of forex regular account it is $2000 to $2,500. The initial account opening amount may vary from broker to broker. Due to the tough competition market some brokers open forex mini accounts for $25 only. This also helps to increase the number of traders in the market. But, it completely depends upon the brokers through which you open your account. In the case of a forex regular account you trade currency in lots of 100,000, where as in forex mini account it is 10,000. Trading currency in lots is rather confusing. This is just to know the difference between the two. The main advantage of opening a forex mini account instead of a forex regular account is that you are decreasing your chances of losing a heavy amount in trades. As every trade happens in lots and points, if you invest your money for higher lots or points, the result may either get you huge profit or huge loss. For general if you lost 10% of your investment, then in the forex mini account you lose will be $25 (10% of $250) whereas in case of forex a regular account is $200 (10% of $2000), which shows more loss of money in the case of a forex regular account. So, as a beginner, it is also advisable to start with a forex mini account instead of going with a forex regular account.

5.4 Steps To Open An Online Forex Trading Account:

With the advancement of the World Wide Web, everything in the world has shrunk and come into a nutshell. Even the Forex market is no exception. Today, you can easily open a forex trading account through simple steps, by just a click of your mouse. You can consult with online forex trading brokers and get the best forex trading account for you sitting cozily at your home and become an online forex trader. Here are the simple steps about opening an online forex trading account explained:

- ✓ Choose the type of online forex trading account that you wish to open
- ✓ Get yourself registered as online forex trader
- ✓ Activate your online forex trading account to get started your career as online forex trader

5.4.1 Choosing the online currency trading account:

Being an online forex trader, you can either get the forex trading accounts opened in your name or in the name of your business. There are also a wide variety of options available such as a standard or a mini currency trading account. The forex trading account is just like a brokerage account that is used by the online forex trader who is just a beginner in the forex market. Those who are new to trading are recommended to open the mini currency trading account for all transactions. The mini account allows the online forex trader to take smaller position in a currency; instead of the trading through standard accounts that is mostly used by regular online forex traders. Usually in a 'forex mini account', the online forex trader is allowed to trade in agreement size of 10,000 units, in the place of the standard 100,000. The forex standard forex trading accounts are usually for the regular and experienced online forex traders.

5.4.2 Completing the forex trading account Registration formalities:

You need to follow certain formalities in order to get registered and get a forex trading account. The account opening formalities may differ from one online forex trading broker to the other. Most of the online forex trading brokers hands over the trading account opening application forms to the traders in PDF format. The information that is asked for in the forms is generally very basic and can be easily provided.

5.4.3 Getting your forex trading Account Activated:

After you submit all the required forex trading account opening documents to your online forex trading broker, you will get notified by an email. After receiving the email, you may need to complete several other formalities online, in order to get your forex trading account activated. Once, all the formalities are over, your online forex trading broker will send you all the details of forex trading account through mail. The details contain instructions, username, and password to start acting as online forex trader.

Chapter 6: Different Types of Forex Software:

As currency trading market is an online trading business and all your transactions carried out online, you require online secure and reliable software to conduct all your currency trading requirements, which is nothing but the requirement of currency trading systems for your currency trading market. Currency trading systems are the platforms where you conduct your trade. The better currency trading system you have, the better results you can expect.

Currency trading systems play a very vital role in the success of your currency trading career. You can get many currency trading systems from different sources like free online currency trading systems, paid online currency trading systems, from your local market, from your broker or even from the experts of the currency trading market. Source can be anywhere as long as the currency trading systems are reliable, secure, and suit your trading style and requirements.

Different currency trading systems are available as per your currency trading requirements, like if you are a full time currency trader then more manual permissions are given to you to perform the currency trading activities, whereas in the case of part time traders more automatic currency trading systems are offered to the service to save their time and provide best results out from each trade in the currency trading market.

Popularity of automated currency trading systems is increasing very rapidly with the best success rates in the currency trading market. Now people prefer more automated currency trading systems over the regular currency trading systems for their currency trading activities in the currency trading market.

Chapter 7: How to Maximize Your Forex Income?

In which the first five points are followed by all the traders in the forex market. But, very few of them also follow the last two points to maximize the income in the forex market.

Forex, Forex market, forex trading market, foreign market or foreign exchange market are the different names of money market, where traders trade with money. Means they buy and sell currencies in forex trading market. It is also known as currency market or currency exchange market. Earning money in this forex trading market is as easy as losing it. One has to be very careful while dealing with these types of trades. There are many important points, which can help you to make good profits and at times avoid you to fall in great losses.
